SERMONS to ASSES, (ſuppoſed to be written by the ingenious Dr. FRANKLIN.)-----Wherein civil and religious Oppreſſion, Taxes, eccleſiaſtical Tythes, Canons, Creeds, &c. are fully expatiated on.—The Author, through the whole Performance, diſplays great Humour and Freedom, much ſarcaſtic Wit, and a true Spirit of Liberty.—Theſe curious Sermons are written in the Stile and Manner of the celebrated YORICK, and has been ſo well received by the Public, that an Edition of One Thouſand Copies have been ſold within the Space of a few Months.

THE late Proprietors of the Village now called HAMPSTEAD, pleaſantly ſituated on Cooper River, hereby give Notice, that beſides a large ſpacious Square, laid out in the Plat of the ſaid Village, and given for the Uſe and Benefit of the Inhabitants thereof, they have ſince extended the Breadth of Front-ſtreet to ſeventy Feet; and have alſo appropriated a ſpacious Piece of high Ground, on the South Side of the Village Land, compleatly ſufficient for the Purpoſes of building a Chapel, and for a Cemetery or Burying-Place, to be under ſuch Regulations and Reſtrictions as ſhall hereafter be appointed by the Legiſlature of this Province.

About Fifty Lots in the ſaid Village are already diſpoſed of to Perſons of Property, many of whom intend immediately to improve them, and about Forty high Land Lots remain unſold. Any Perſon inclined to purchaſe them, or any of them, may apply any Time before the 5th day of April next, to HENRY LAURENS, or WILLIAM BAMPFEILD.

WHEREAS Captain Alexander Livingſton, has inſerted in Mr. Timothy's Gazette, a long and fabulous Tale, to which he has inadvertantly atteſted before the Honourable Othniel Beale, Eſq; with no other Intent but to injure me and Meſſrs. Wilſon, Curam, Wayne, & Co. I do hereby declare, the Names of thoſe Gentlemen were never mentioned, or any Perſons who really had Dealings with Livingſton, or did he ever aſk ſuch Queſtions as he has falſely inſerted, as ſhall plainly appear, with every particular Circumſtance and Tranſaction, from the firſt Landing of Livingſton's Wines (in Mr. Timothy's Gazette) and evident Proofs, without the Aſſiſtance of any Emiſſary, or virulent Perſon.

JOHN TUKE.

THE South Part of the Subſcriber's Wharf is now fit for Buſineſs. Coaſting Schooners, and inland Boats of any Size, may unload there full as commodiouſly and ſafely, and with as great Diſpatch as in any Dock in Town.—He has Stores already built that will contain about Fifteen Hundred Barrels of Rice, and is about building more. He will be much obliged to ſuch Perſons as will order their Produce to be landed at his Wharf, where, whenever they are inclinable to ſtore their Rice or Indico, &c. they will be as ſafe from all Dangers, particularly from Fire, as in any Stores in the Province.—He will be particularly attentive to give their Boats the utmoſt Diſpatch, and as he is ſure the Produce of the Province can be diſpoſed of at his Wharf to as much Advantage as any where elſe, ſuch of his Friends as will ſend whatever Rice, Indico, or Naval Stores, they order to be landed at his Wharf, to him, he will fell thoſe Articles for them at the uſual Rates.—He will make no Charge this Crop for any Rice ſtored in his Stores belonging to the Planters, not exceeding one Week, nor belonging to the Merchants, for that Time, provided 'tis ſhipt off at his Wharf.

N. B. There is no Wharf in Town where the Ships can lay more ſecure, or where their Cables will be ſo little liable to Damage, and ſuch Ships as land their Ballaſt at his Wharf this Crop, ſhall be charged no Wharfage, be aſſiſted to put it out, and have their Water Caſks filled with as good Water as any to be got in or near Town beſides, gratis.——Not a Wharf in Town better, if ſo well calculated, for diſpatching a Veſſel, or where there is ſo little Occaſion for Porters to roll Rice, &c. indeed that Charge may be altogether ſaved, or at moſt can coſt the Gentlemen in Trade a mere Triſle.

Want of Oeconomy the fatale Ruin of Private, Families and Kingdoms.

WHATEVER people, giving themselves up to luxury and idleness, neglect or discourage their own Manufactures, and purchase at vast expence the superfluities of other nations; or whatever person lives beyond his income, be it less or more, must inevitably be undone.

This every one acknowledges; and yet, either through indolence, want of timely consideration, or from a stupid pride of appearing above their rank and fortune, multitudes are seen every where rushing headlong on to poverty and sorrow, who by little care might live in ease and plenty. Very few there are but might be happy, would they content themselves with what they really stand in need of, according to their circumstances and condition, without aspiring after things unnecessary or inconvenient for them: But, the misfortunes of the generality arise from a mistake that runs almost through all mankind, which is, they seek their happiness in the opinion of other people, and not in their own breast, where only it can be found: This misleads them into a thousand absurdities, and instead of making them admired, and more than usually respected, as they imagine, exposes them most commonly to pity, contempt, or ridicule.——Gaymore with 500l. a year, might have enjoyed all the reasonable conveniencies and pleasures of life: This fortune placed him above dependence, and could furnish every thing a single man could well wish or have occasion for. After his uncle died, who left it him, he lived prudently for a year or two, kept only a servant and brace of geldings; in summer boarded with a relation down in a pleasant country village, and was contented with a decent lodging when he came to town in winter.

But falling into acquaintance with some of those pretty fellows, who carry more powder upon their shoulders than the weight of their brains amounts to, he became fantastical in dress, grew wonderfully enamoured of gold and silver lace, changed his English full wig for a flaring French toupee, and hired a chair to carry him by the week, lest the rude winds should discompose the curls, or destroy the perfumes of the essence wherewith the powder was pasted on. Here began his ruin. This finery must be shewn in all public places, the opera, the masquerade, the drawing-room: He lived among the Beau-Monde, and every day had its appointed gallantries. This soon out-ran his income. He used to keep accounts of his disbursements and receipts, and found a considerable satisfaction therein, while the balance was on the side of his estate; but now being unable to examine his affairs without uneasiness and remorse, he tore his papers, and resolved to give himself no more that trouble. In this manner he went on some time, borrowing money as he found occasion, till he became so much embarrassed, that to make himself more at ease, he sold his estate; and having got thereby some ready cash, hired a large house, set up a pompous equipage, and in hopes of repairing his ruined fortune, made his addresses to a rich heiress. But upon enquiring into his circumstances, he was soon rejected there, and after having blazed a month or two, sunk at once into contempt and poverty, with all its dismal consequences; and has, at present, no other way of supporting a wretched life, but by whispering people as they pass along, and in any manner begging them to relieve a poor unfortunate and deceived gentleman.

We see here the dire effects of inconsideration and extravagance. Had this miserable man been contented with the conveniencies, he had never wanted the needful things of life; could he have been satisfied in his own happiness, without affecting to be thought extraordinary for the glitter of an empty vain appearance, he had not now been posted at the bleak corner of a street, all starving, cold, and comfortless, his cheeks pinched in with hunger, his body covered with dirty rags, and himself a beggar. Sure it must be exceeding grievous, for such as have lived in splendor, to be brought to these extremities; and that too, not by unavoidable misfortunes, but merely through their own carelessness and folly.

Examples of this sort are numberless; for the largest fortune is too little against extravagance, though a very small one may be made sufficient by good œconomy. Would people examine their affairs continually, to see how they stand in life, they would learn to regulate their expences by their income, and find from so doing, a much more reasonable and exquisite satisfaction than all the vanity and ostentation of appearing gay and rich can give.

SAVANNAH, (in Georgia) MARCH 21.

THE Honourable Jonathan Bryan, a gentleman of revolution principles, and a person who has been greatly instrumental in the settlement of this colony, received from his Excellency Governor Wright a letter, dated 26th February, signifying his Majesty's pleasure to suspend him from his seat in Council, and he is accordingly suspended.

Extract of a Letter from Lisbon, dated December 9, 1769.

"All the change the count de Oeyras has made in the proceedings of the holy office is, that he has set aside the public processions, or Autos de fé; as to any other alterations, from the best information I can get, things continue the same as they did, for though the public processions are forbid, within the inquisition, they have private ones, but no list of those that walk is permitted to be published. His brother, Francisco Xavier de Mendonca Furtado, secretary for the marine department, died at Villa Viciosa about eighteen days ago, the King and royal family being there on a party of pleasure. The Count's other brother, Paulo de Carvalho, inquisitor and president of the senate, &c. lies dangerously ill at the Count's house at Ajuda, and not the least hopes of his recovery; which affects the Count greatly; and every one was in expectation he would very shortly lose his influence with the King, but an affair happened at Villa Viciosa the 4th instant, which it is feared will make his Majesty more dependant on him than ever: That morning, the King on horseback, going to the Tapada to hunt, about eight o'clock, as he passed the gate of the village, a man, dressed like a country peasant, with a long pole in his hand, and a large knob at the end of it, made a stroke at his Majesty's head, but missed his aim, and the blow fell on his bridle hand; he made a second stroke, but only hit his shoulder; and the third fell on the horse's rump: The Count de Prado, being nearest the King, leaped from his horse, and flew to secure the assassin, but with the said pole received several blows, and also the Count d'Arcos and one of the King's picadares, who at last had the good fortune to seize him: The Queen, who by this time came up, called for a gun to shoot him, but the King put a stop to her intention, and would not permit her to fire. No one as yet knows what discoveries this man may make. Orders are gone to bring him to this city. Some think he has been put upon this by the jesuits. No doubt the Count will find out who have been concerned in this affair, and according to custom, ingratiate himself with his Majesty. God only knows how it may end."

Lieutenant-Governor and Commander in Chief, in and over the said Province.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS it has been represented unto me, that the CATAWBA INDIANS have lately been interrupted in their Deer-Hunting by sundry Persons, from a Misapprehension, that the Act passed in the last Session of the General Assembly, intitled, "An Act for the Preservation of Deer, and to prevent Mischiefs arising from hunting at unseasonable Times," extended to them, I DO therefore think fit, by and with the Advice of His Majesty's honourable Council, to publish this my Proclamation, to NOTIFY, That in and by the said Act, it is provided, that nothing therein contained should extend, or be construed to extend, to deprive the INDIANS in Amity with this Province, of any Right or Priviledge that they are intitled to, by Virtue of any Treaty now subsisting between them and this Government; and I DO THEREFORE hereby strictly inhibit and forbid any Person or Persons whatever, to interrupt or hinder the said CATAWBA INDIANS, or any INDIANS in Amity with this Government, in their Deer-Hunting, for the future.

GIVEN under my Hand, and the Great Seal of the said Province, at CHARLES-TOWN, this Twenty-Ninth Day of March, Anno Domini 1770, and in the Tenth Year of his Majesty's Reign.

BOSTON, FEBRUARY 26.

THE worthy Mr. McDougall of New-York, will be juſtly celebrated by poſterity, as the firſt who has ſuffered actual impriſonment for aſſerting the cauſe of American liberty. A very diſtinguiſhed patriot in this town was long before made the object of the fury of the curſed cabal; and by the good providence of God eſcaped an aſſaſſination evidently intended in September laſt, though not without the loſs of blood: And the barbarous treatment this gentleman then met with, though not yet revenged, is not forgot----Others have ſuffered in their reputation----Others in their eſtates; having endured the fiery trial of modern courts of admiralty, where they have been harraſſed and diſtreſſed for no other apparent reaſon but their being ſteady and able advocates for the cauſe. This innocent lad is the firſt whoſe life has been a victim to the cruelty and rage of oppreſſors! Young as he was, he died in his country's cauſe, by the hand of an execrable villain, directed by others, who could not bear to ſee the enemies of America made the ridicule of boys. The untimely death of this amiable youth will be a ſtanding monument to futurity, that the time has been when innocence itſelf was not ſafe! The blood of young Allen may be covered in Britain: But a thorough inquiſition will be made in America for that of young Snider, which crieth for vengeance, like the blood of righteous Abel. And ſurely if juſtice has not been driven from its ſeat, ſpeedy vengeance awaits his murderers and their accomplices, however ſecure they may think themſelves at preſent: For who ſheddeth, or procureth the ſhedding of man's blood, by man ſhall his blood be ſhed.

March 8. One day laſt week a ſoldier who has long paſſed for the bully of the 29th regiment, bought two baſkets of charcoal from a Stoughton man, and in payment offered him a piſtareen in lieu of a ſhilling ſterling, which the man refuſed, and inſiſted on his money, or the return of the coal. The ſoldier denied to do either, on which the charcoal-man ſaid he would take it out of his hide, rather than trouble himſelf much about it. To which the bully very readily agreed, and was laid ſprawling at every paſs, till quite tired of the diverſion, he profeſſed his ſatisfaction, took his fellow combatant to an ale-houſe, and amicably ſettled the diſpute.

Not quite ſo fortunate were two of theſe Don Quixote adventurers, who fell upon a young man walking quietly near the lower end of King-ſtreet, and ſtopping him in his way, inſulted him with very opprobrious language, on which, after a very ſhort parley, he laid both ſprawling, and went about his buſineſs. Two or three more ſuch rencounters having happened lately, tis ſaid many of the 29th regiment, have armed themſelves with bludgeons of about two feet long, a round handle, and the body of the club three ſquare. With ſuch weapons as theſe, ſwords and cutlaſſes, on Friday laſt, about eleven o'clock, they made a formal attack on the rope-walk of Mr. John Gray; one of them appearing firſt, and complaining that ſome of their people had affronted him, and declared he would have ſatisfaction. The workmen not much attending to him, he grew very abuſive, and challenged any one in the rope-walk to turn out and fight him; one of the hands ſtepped out to him, very ſpeedily tript up his heels and took his ſword from him. He then went away from them, and ſoon returned with eight or nine more, armed as aforeſaid, aſking very haughtily, why he had been uſed in that manner? The anſwers probably not pleaſing the gentlemen-ſoldiers (as it ſeems they affect to ſtile themſelves) they fell upon the rope-makers, who being accidentally well provided for their reception, made it neceſſary for the whole body to march in queſt of auxiliaries. Recruited to the number of thirty or forty, they again viſited the rope-walks, and challenged any or all of the workmen to come out and fight them. This offer was readily embraced, and notwithſtanding the ſoldiers were three to one, prepared on purpoſe, they were beat off, many of them much bruiſed, and two or three of the workmen ſlightly wounded.

Mr. Juſtice Hill came up as this laſt riotous multitude advanced, told them he was in commiſſion of the peace, and commanded them to go to their barracks. In this exerciſe of his duty he was ſtruck at by one of them with a club, which had it reached him, might have been fatal; and ſo daring was this fellow, that in the Magiſtrate's preſence, he knocked down a labourer, dragged him about, and beat and abuſed him much, in deſpite of the Juſtice's interpoſition. No leſs audacious was the behaviour of a tall negro drummer, to whom Juſtice Hill particularly ſpoke, ordering him home, but he intent on wounding, or probably killing the inhabitants, headed the party ſword in hand; but had his ſword beat from his hold, which however being chained to his body he carried with him. He is ſaid to be much wounded.

Between five and ſix the ſame evening, a large body of them collected again, and were in full march for the field of battle; when Mr. John Gray, owner of the walks, met them, and diverted their intention for that evening. But on Saturday, about half after four three ſtout grenadiers, armed with bludgeons as above deſcribed, came into the bottom of the walks, and finding three young men ſpinning together unarmed, accoſted them in theſe moſt impudent words, "You d---ned dogs, don't you deſerve to be kill'd?" The lads not anſwering, Mr. James Young came up, and ſpoke boldly, on which a grenadier aimed a blow at his head, but Mr. Young fended it off with his arms; he then turned from Young and made a paſs at Mr. Archibald M'Neil, jun. which he avoided, otherwiſe believes it might have killed him. During this bluſter one of Mr. W. Calef's journeymen, went into the tan-houſe, got two bats, and giving one to his comrade, ſoon cleared the walks of the ſoldiers.

MARCH 12. The Town of Boſton affords a recent and melancholy Demonſtration of the deſtructive conſequences of quartering troops among citizens in time of Peace, under a pretence of ſupporting the laws and aiding civil authority; every conſiderate and unprejudiced Perſon among us was deeply impreſt with the apprehenſion of theſe conſequences when it was known that a number of regiments were ordered to this town under ſuch a pretext, but in reality to inforce oppreſſive meaſures; to awe and controul the legiſlative as well as executive power of the province, and to quell a ſpirit of liberty, which however it may have been baſely oppoſed and even ridiculed by ſome, would do honour to any age or country. A few perſons among us had determined to uſe all their influence to procure ſo deſtructive a meaſure, with a view to their ſecurely enjoying the profits of an American revenue, and unhappily both for Britain and this country, they found means to effect it.

It is to Governor Bernard, the commiſſioners, their conſidents and coadjutors, that we are indebted as the procuring cauſe of a military power in this capital.----The Boſton Journal of Occurrences printed in Mr. Holt's York Journal, from time to time, afforded many ſtriking inſtances of the diſtreſſes brought upon the inhabitants by this meaſure; and ſince thoſe Journals have been diſcontinued, our troubles from that quarter have been growing upon us: We have known a party of ſoldiers in the face of day fire off a loaded muſket upon the inhabitants, others have been pricked with bayonets, and even our magiſtrates aſſaulted and put in danger of their lives, when offenders brought before them have been reſcued; and why thoſe and other bold and baſe criminals have as yet eſcaped the puniſhment due to their crimes, may be ſoon matter of enquiry by the repreſentative body of this people.---It is natural to ſuppoſe that when the inhabitants of this town ſaw thoſe laws which had been enacted for their ſecurity, and which they were ambitious of holding up to the ſoldiery, eluded, they ſhould moſt commonly reſent for themſelves------and accordingly it ſo has happened; many have been the ſquabbles between them and the ſoldiery; but it ſeems their being often worſted by our youth in thoſe ren-counters, has only ſerved to irritate the former.----What paſſed at Mr. Gray's rope-walk, has already been given the public, and may be ſaid to have led the way to the late cataſtrophe.--That the rope-walk lads when attacked by ſuperior numbers ſhould defend themſelves with ſo much ſpirit and ſucceſs in the club-way, was too mortifying, and perhaps it may hereafter appear, that even ſome of their officers were unhappily affected with this circumſtance: Divers ſtories were propagated among the ſoldiery, that ſerved to agitate their ſpirits; particularly on the Sabbath, that one Chambers, a ſerjeant, repreſented as a ſober man, had been miſſing the preceding day, and muſt therefore have been murdered by the townſmen; an officer of diſtinction ſo far credited this report, that he entered Mr. Gray's rope-walk that Sabbath; and when enquired of by that gentleman as ſoon as he could meet him, the occaſion of his ſo doing, the officer replyed, that it was to look if the ſerjeant ſaid to be murdered had not been hid there; this ſober ſerjeant was found on the Monday unhurt, in a houſe of pleaſure.----The evidences already collected ſhew, that many threatnings had been thrown out by the ſoldiery, but we do not pretend to ſay there was any preconcerted plan; when the evidences are publiſhed, the world will judge.-----We may however venture to declare, that it appears too probable from their conduct, that ſome of the ſoldiery aimed to draw and provoke the townſmen into ſquabbles, and that they then intended to make uſe of other weapons than canes, clubs or bludgeons.

Our readers will doubtleſs expect a circumſtantial account of the tragical affair on Monday night laſt; but we hope they will excuſe our not being ſo particular as we ſhould have been, had we not ſeen that the town was intending an inquiry and full repreſentation thereof.

On the evening of Monday, being the 5th current, ſeveral ſoldiers of the 29th regiment, were ſeen parading the ſtreets with their drawn cutlaſſes and bayonets, abuſing and wounding numbers of the inhabitants.

A few minutes after nine o'clock, four youths, named Edward Archbald, William Merchant, Francis Archbald, and John Leech, jun. came down Cornhill together, and ſeparated at Dr. Loring's corner, the two former were paſſing the narrow alley leading to Murray's barrack, in which was a ſoldier brandiſhing a broad ſword of an uncommon ſize againſt the walls, out of which he ſtruck fire plentifully. A perſon of mean contenance armed with a large club bore him company. Edward Archbald admoniſhed Mr. Merchant to take care of the ſword, on which the ſoldier turned round and ſtruck Archbald on the arm, then puſhed at Merchant and pierced through his clothes inſide the arm cloſe to the arm-pit and grazed the ſkin. Merchant then ſtruck the ſoldier with a ſhort ſtick he had, and the other perſon ran to the barrack and brought with him two ſoldiers, one armed with a pair of tongs, the other with a ſhovel: He with the tongs purſued Archbald back through the alley, collared and laid him over the head with the tongs. The noiſe brought people together, and John Hix a young lad, coming up, knocked the ſoldier down, but let him get up again; and more lads gathering, drove them back to the barrack, where the boys ſtood ſome time as if were to keep them in. In leſs than a minute 10 or 12 of them came out with drawn cutlaſſes, clubs and bayonets, and ſet upon the unarmed boys and young folks, who ſtood them a little while, but finding the inequality of their equipment diſperſed. ---On hearing the noiſe, one Samuel Atwood, came up to ſee what was the matter, and entering the alley from dock-ſquare, heard the latter part of the combat, and when the boys diſperſed he met the 10 or 12 ſoldiers aforeſaid ruſhing down the alley towards the ſquare, and aſked them if they intended to murder the people? They anſwered Yes, by G---d, root and branch! With that one of them ſtruck Mr. Atwood with a club, which was repeated by another, and being unarmed he turned to go off, and received a wound on the left ſhoulder which reached the bone and gave him much pain. Retreating a few ſteps Mr. Atwood met two officers and ſaid, Gentlemen, what is the matter? They anſwered, you'll ſee by and by. Immediately after, thoſe heroes appeared in the ſquare, aſking where were the boogers? where were the cowards? But notwithſtanding their fierceneſs to naked men, one of them advanced towards a youth who had a ſplit of a raw ſtave in his hand, and ſaid damn them here is one of them; but the young man ſeeing a perſon near him with a drawn ſword and a good cane ready to ſupport him, held up his ſtave in defiance, and they quietly paſſed by him, up the little alley by Mr. Silſby's to King-ſtreet, where they attacked ſingle and unarmed perſons till they raiſed much clamour, and then turned down Cornhill ſtreet, inſulting all they met in like manner, and purſuing ſome to their very doors.

Thirty or forty perſons, moſtly lads, being by this means gathered in King-ſtreet, Captain Preſton, with a party of men with charged bayonets, came from the main guard to the commiſſioner's houſe, the ſoldiers puſhing their bayonets, crying, make way! They took place by the cuſtom-houſe, and continuing to puſh, to drive the people off, pricked ſome in ſeveral places; on which they were clamorous, and, it is ſaid threw ſnow-balls. On this the Captain commanded them to fire, and more ſnow-balls coming he again ſaid, Damn you, Fire, be the conſequence what it will! One ſoldier then fired, and a townſman with a cudgel ſtruck him over the hands with ſuch force that he dropt his firelock; and ruſhing forward aimed a blow at the Captain's head, which grazed his hat and fell pretty heavy upon his arm: However, the ſoldiers continued the fire, ſucceſsfully, till 7 or 8, or as ſome ſay eleven guns were diſcharged.

By this fatal manœuvre, three men were laid dead on the ſpot, and two more ſtruggling for life; but what ſhewed a degree of cruelty unknown to Britiſh troops, at leaſt ſince the houſe of Hanover has directed their operations, was an attempt to fire upon, or puſh with their bayonets the perſons who undertook to remove the ſlain and wounded!

Mr. Benjamin Leigh, now undertaker in Delph Manufactory, came up, and after ſome converſation with Capt. Preſton, relative to his conduct in this affair, adviſed him to draw off his men, with which he complied.

The dead are Mr. Samuel Gray, killed on the ſpot, the ball entering his head and beating off a large portion of his ſkull.

A mulatto man, named Criſpus Attucks, who was born in Farmingham, but lately belonged to New-Providence, and was here in order to go for North-Carolina, alſo killed inſtantly; two balls entering his breaſt, one of them in ſpecial goring the right lobe of the lungs, and a great part of the liver moſt horribly.

Mr. James Caldwell, mate of Capt. Morton's veſſel, in like manner killed, by two balls entering his back.

Mr. Samuel Maverick, a promiſing youth of 17 years of age, ſon of the widow Maverick, and an apprentice to Mr. Green, wood, Ivory-Turner, mortally wounded, a ball went through his belly, and was cut out at his back: He died the next morning.

A lad named Chriſtopher Monk, about 17 years of age, apprentice to Mr. Walker, Shipwright; wounded, a ball entered his back about 4 inches above his left kidney, near the ſpine, and was cut out of the breaſt on the ſame ſide; apprehended he will die.

A lad named John Clark, about 17 years of age, whoſe parents live at Medford, and an apprentice to Capt. Samuel How ard of this town; wounded, a ball entered juſt above his groin and came out at his hip, on the oppoſite ſide, apprehended he will die.

Mr. Edward Payne, of this town, merchant, ſtanding at his entry door, received a ball in his arm, which ſhattered ſome of the bones.

Mr. John Green, Taylor, coming up Leverett's Lane, received a ball juſt under his hip, and lodged it in the under part of his thigh, which was extracted.

Mr. Robert Patterſon, a ſeafaring man, who was the perſon that had his trowſers ſhot through in Richardſon's affair, wounded; a ball went through his right arm, and he ſuffered great loſs of blood.

Mr. Patrick Carr, about 30 years of age, who worked with Mr. Field, Leather-Breeches-maker in Queen-ſtreet, wounded, a ball entered near his hip, and went out at his ſide.

A lad named David Parker, an apprentice to Mr. Eddy the Wheelwright, wounded, a ball entered his thigh.

The people were immediately alarmed with the report of this horrid maſſacre, the bells were ſet a ringing, and great numbers ſoon aſſembled at the place where this tragical ſcene had been acted; their feelings may be better conceived than expreſſed; and while ſome were taking care of the dead and wounded, the reſt were in conſultation what to do in theſe dreadful circumſtances.------But ſo little intimidated were they, notwithſtanding their being within a few yards of the main-guard, and ſeeing the 29th regiment under arms, and drawn up in King-ſtreet; that they kept their ſtation, and appeared as an officer of rank expreſſed it, ready to run upon the very muzzles of their muſkets. ----The Lieutenant-Governor ſoon came into the Town-Houſe, and there met ſome of his Majeſty's Council, and a number of civil Magiſtrates; a conſiderable body of people immediately entered the Council chamber, and expreſſed themſelves to his Honour with a freedom and warmth becoming the occaſion. He uſed his utmoſt endeavour to pacify them, requeſting that they would let the matter ſubſide for the night, and promiſed to do all in his power that juſtice ſhould be done, and the law have its courſe; men of influence and weight with the people were not wanting on their part to procure their compliance with his Honour's requeſt, by repreſenting the horrible conſequences of a promiſcuous and raſh engagement in the night, and aſſuring them that ſuch meaſures ſhould be entered upon in the morning, as would be agreeable to their dignity, and more likely way of obtaining the beſt ſatisfaction for the blood of their fellow-townſmen.------The inhabitants attended to theſe ſuggeſtions, and the regiment under arms being ordered to the barracks, which was inſiſted upon by the people, they then ſeparated and returned to their dwellings, by one o'clock. At three o'clock Capt. Preſton was committed, as were the ſoldiers who fired, a few hours after him.

Tueſday morning preſented a moſt ſhocking ſcene, the blood of our fellow-citizens running like water through King-ſtreet, and the Merchant's Exchange, the principal ſpot of the military parade for about 18 months paſt. Our blood might alſo be tracked up to the head of Long-Lane, and through divers other ſtreets and paſſages.

At eleven o'clock, the inhabitants met at Faneuil-Hall, and after ſome animated ſpeeches, becoming the occaſion, they choſe a Committee of 15 reſpectable Gentlemen, to wait upon the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, to requeſt of him to iſſue his orders for the immediate removal of the troops.

The Meſſage was in theſe Words:

"THAT it is the unanimous opinion of this meeting, that the inhabitants and ſoldiery can no longer live together in ſafety; that nothing can rationally be expected to reſtore the peace of the town and prevent further blood and carnage, but the immediate removal of the troops; and that we therefore moſt fervently pray his Honour that his power and influence may be exerted for their inſtant removal."

His Honour's Reply, which was laid before the Town, then adjourned to the Old South Meeting-Houſe, was as follows:

GENTLEMEN,

"I AM extremely ſorry for the unhappy differences between the inhabitants and troops, and eſpecially for the action of the laſt evening, and I have exerted myſelf upon that occaſion, that a due inquiry may be made, and that the law may have its courſe. I have in council conſulted with the commanding officers of the two regiments who are in the town. They have their orders from the General at New-York. It is not in my power to countermand thoſe orders. The council have deſired that the two regiments may be removed to the Caſtle. From the particular concern which the 29th regiment has had in your differences, Colonel Dalrymple, who is the commanding officer of the troops, has ſignified that that regiment ſhall, without delay, be placed in the barracks at the Caſtle, until he can ſend to the General and receive his further orders concerning both the regiments; and that the main guard ſhall be removed, and the 14th regiment ſo diſpoſed and laid under ſuch reſtraint that all occaſion of future diſturbances may be prevented."

The foregoing reply having been read and fully conſidered---the queſtion was put, whether the report be ſatisfactory? Paſſed in the negative, only one diſſentient out of upwards of 4000 voters.

It was then moved and voted that John Hancock, Eſq; Mr. Samuel Adams, Mr. William Molineux, William Philips, Eſq; Dr. Joſeph Warren, Joſhua Henſhaw, Eſq; and Samuel Pemberton, Eſq; be a Committee to wait on his Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, and inform him, that it is the unanimous Opinion of this Meeting, that the Reply made to a Vote of the Inhabitants preſented his Honour in the Morning, is by no means ſatisfactory; and that nothing leſs will ſatisfy, than a total and immediate removal of all the Troops.

The Committee having waited on the Lieutenant-Governor agreeable to the foregoing Vote; laid before the Inhabitants the following Vote of Council, received from his Honour.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor laid before the Board a Vote of the Town of Boſton, paſſed this afternoon, and then addreſſed the Board as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Council,

"I lay before you a Vote of the Town of Boſton, which I have juſt now received from them, and I now aſk your adviſe what you judge neceſſary to be done upon it."

The Council thereupon expreſſed themſelves to be unanimouſly of opinion, "that it was abſolutely neceſſary for his Majeſty's ſervice, the good order of the Town, and the Peace of the Province, that the Troops ſhould be immediately removed out of the Town of Boſton, and thereupon adviſed his Honour to communicate this Adviſe of the Council to Colonel Dalrymple, and to pray that he would order the Troops down to Caſtle-William." The Committee alſo informed the Town, that Colonel Dalrymple, after having ſeen the Vote of Council, ſaid to the Committee, "That he now gave his word of Honour that he would begin his Preparations in the Morning, and that there ſhould be no unneceſſary delay until the whole of the two Regiments were removed to the Caſtle.

Upon the above Report being read, the Inhabitants could not avoid expreſſing the high ſatisfaction it afforded them.

After Meaſures were taken for the Security of the Town, in the Night by a ſtrong Military Watch, the Meeting was diſſolved.

The 29th Regiment have already left us, and the 14th Regiment are following them, ſo that we expect the town will ſoon be clear of all the troops. The wiſdom and true policy of his Majeſty's council and Colonel Dalrymple, the commander, appear in this meaſure. Two regiments in this populous city; and the inhabitants juſtly incenſed: Thoſe of the neighbouring towns actually under arms upon the firſt report of the maſſacre, and the ſignal only wanting to bring in a few hours to the gates of this city, many thouſands of our brave brethren in the country, deeply affected with our diſtreſſes, and to whom we are greatly obliged on this occaſion.---No one knows where this would have ended, and what important conſequences even to the whole Britiſh empire might have followed, which our moderation and loyalty, upon ſo trying an occaſion, and our faith in the commander's aſſurances, have happily prevented.

Laſt Thurſday, agreeable to a general requeſt of the inhabitants, and by the conſent of parents and friends, were carried to their grave in ſucceſſion, the bodies of Samuel Gray, Samuel Maverick, James Caldwell, and Criſpus Attucks, the unhappy victims who fell in the bloody maſſacre of the Monday evening preceding!

On this occaſion moſt of the ſhops in town were ſhut, all the bells were ordered to toll a ſolemn peal, as were alſo thoſe in the neighbouring towns of Charles-Town, Roxbury, &c. The proceſſion began to move between the hours of four and five in the afternoon; two of the unfortunate ſufferers, viz. Meſſieurs James Caldwell and Criſpus Attucks, who were ſtrangers, borne from Faneuil-Hall, attended by a numerous train of perſons of all ranks; and the other two, viz. Mr. Samuel Gray, from the houſe of Mr. Benjamin Gray (his brother) on the north ſide of the Exchange, and Mr. Maverick from the houſe of Mrs. Mary Maverick, in Union-ſtreet, each followed by their reſpective relations and friends: The ſeveral hearſes forming a junction in King-ſtreet, the theatre of that inhuman tragedy! proceeded from thence through the Main-ſtreet, lengthened by an immenſe concourſe of people, ſo numerous as to be obliged to follow in ranks of ſix, and brought up by a long train of carriages, belonging to the principal gentry of the town. The bodies were depoſited in one vault in the middle burying-ground. The aggravated circumſtances of their death, the diſtreſs and ſorrow viſible in every countenance, together with the peculiar ſolemnity with which the whole funeral was conducted, ſurpaſs deſcription.

A military watch has been kept every night at the Town-houſe and priſon, in which many of the moſt reſpectable gentlemen of the town have appeared as the common ſoldiers, and night after night have given their attendance.

A ſervant boy of one Manwaring, the tide-waiter, from Quebec, is now in gaol, having depoſed, that himſelf, by the order and encouragement of his ſuperiors, had diſcharged a muſket ſeveral times from one of the windows of the houſe in King-ſtreet, hired by the commiſſioners and cuſtom-houſe officers to do their buſineſs in; more than one other perſon declared upon oath, that they apprehended ſeveral diſcharges came from that quarter.------It is not improbable that we may ſoon be able to account for the aſſaſſination of Mr. Otis ſome time paſt; the meſſage by Wilmot who came from the ſame houſe to the infamous Richardſon, before his firing the gun which killed young Snider, and to open up ſuch a ſcene of villainy, acted by a dirty banditti, as muſt aſtoniſh the public.

It is ſuppoſed that there muſt have been a greater number of people from town and country at the funeral of thoſe who were maſſacred by the ſoldiers, than were ever together on this continent on any occaſion.

A more dreadful tragedy has been acted by the ſoldiery in King-ſtreet, Boſton, New-England, than was ſome time ſince exhibited in St. George's-Fields, London, in Old England, which may ſerve inſtead of beacons for both countries.

Had thoſe worthy patriots, not only repreſented by Bernard and the commiſſioners as a faction, but as aiming at making a ſeparation between Britain and the Colonies, had any thing elſe in contemplation, than the preſervation of our rights, and bringing things back to their old foundation------what an opening has been given them!

Among other matters in the warrant for the annual town-meeting this day, is the following clauſe, viz. "Whether the town "will take any meaſures that a public monument may be erected "on the ſpot where the late tragical ſcene was acted, as a memento to poſterity, of that horrid maſſacre, and the deſtructive conſequences of military troops being quartered in a well regulated city!"

The town in this inſtance, not only eye the particular hand of Providence, but reſent with gratitude, the generous ſimpathy with which the adjoining towns, as well as the province in general, ſeems to have been affected by this melancholy cataſtrophe.

With fire enwrapt, ſurcharg'd with ſudden death,
Lo, the poiſ'd tube conſolves its fatal breath,
The flying ball with heav'n-directed force,
Rids the free ſpirit of it's fallen corſe.
Well fated ſhades! let no unmanly tear
From pity's eye, diſtain your honour'd bier:
Loſt to their view, ſurviving friends may mourn,
Yet o'er thy pile ſhall flames celeſtial burn;
Long as in freedom's cauſe the wiſe contend,
Dear to your country ſhall your fame extend;
While to the world, the letter'd ſtone ſhall tell,
How Caldwell, Attucks, Gray and Mav'rick fell!

In the mean Time, I ſhall be ready to join with you in ſuch of our interior Buſineſs as ſhall be thought neceſſary, or expedient. The State of this Buſineſs, I am not able particularly to point out to you, having had but little Knowledge of the Affairs of the General Court for ſeveral Years paſt. There are Amendments and Alterations abſolutely neceſſary to be made in ſome of our Laws, the Defects of which have of late been Subject of general Complaint; I ſhall therefore propoſe them to you by Meſſage. I have another Matter alſo of general Utility, which I ſhall lay before you in the ſame Way.

You cannot oblige me more than by putting it in my Power to concur with you in Meaſures for promoting the Peace, good Order, and laſting Tranquility of the Province.

I am ſenſible the Seaſon of the Year is approaching when you cannot be abſent from your ſeveral Homes without peculiar Prejudice to your private Affairs: I ſhall therefore do all that is neceſſary on my Part to give the greateſt Diſpatch to the Buſineſs of the Seſſion, at the ſame Time, I am willing to give Attendance upon it as long as we can employ ourſelves for the Benefit of the Province.
